

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Ces cours sont semestriels ; ils dureront du 3 Novembre au 29 Février. Ils seront terminés par des examens.

Aux Facultés des Sciences et de Médecine sont organisés des Cours de perfectionnement pour les étudiants français et étrangers.

Parallèlement aux cours universitaires fonctionnent des cours élémentaires et pratiques de langue française par petites classes de 15 élèves.

" THAT THESE DEAD SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN "

SIR,—The writer has had the very real pleasure, recently, of reading your April issue with its splendid articles written by George Harvey and by David Jayne Hill. To an American who has been out of his country for several years, and who has been dependent for the most part on the manifestly colored cables from the American correspondents in Paris, your articles are delightful proofs that the spirit of real Americanism is still alive and not strangled by the mushy sentimentalism which the Wilson party is displaying to the world in France.

It might be of interest to inform you of the very serious injury to Americans in this country, caused by the present Administration. In the first place, the lying and boastful Creel propaganda started a flood of criticism here, which has recently developed into a violent anti-American campaign. Abusive articles against Wilson and against America and Americans generally are appearing in the papers here daily. The writer has the best of reason to believe that the underlying cause of all this resentment is the boastful and meddlesome attitude of our representatives, both at home and at the Peace Conference. The " unkindest cut of all " in these articles is that they are only too true when speaking of the Administration, and the people down here, unfortunately, are unable to distinguish between the real and counterfeit American ; between the " Wilson " American and the true type, in other words. To cap the climax, if that were possible, the speech of the President in Paris on Memorial Day seems to touch the depths of cold, calculating selfishness. Scarcely a passing word about the gallant dead, he attempts to exhume the bodies to speak in favor of his cherished League of Nations. The contrast between the address of Lincoln at Gettysburg and this indecent use of the occasion to attempt to further his personal project is nothing but painful to Americans who have pride in the honor of their country, and who resent the attempt to drag the valiant dead, who cannot speak, into his personal controversy. I sincerely hope and believe that this speech will be answered, and well answered, by some of the patriotic members of Congress.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL.

THOMAS W. CHILTON.

THE FARMER'S VIEW

SIR,—I have been much impressed by the failure of certain writers, including yourself, to appreciate the real reason for the farmer's opposition to the so-called daylight saving law.

Farmers, like other manufacturers, are largely dependent upon hired labor, and they cannot procure and retain efficient employees unless